

Alberta to license home inspectors

Alberta and British Columbia are the only Provinces that have licenced Home Inspectors in order to protect consumers!
Is Ontario next?

Home inspectors will need a provincial licence by September under new rules introduced by the Alberta government.

To get a licence, inspectors will have to complete a training program and pass a test inspection. Current inspectors who don't meet the requirements can apply for a conditional licence that is good until March 31, 2013. New rules will also require businesses to carry insurance that covers mistakes and negligence.

Is your Home Inspector going to be qualified when Licencing comes to Ontario??

Your success as a Realtor in in the future depends on how well you have helped your clients in the present.

Are you recommending a Home Inspector that has the qualifications for licencing and carries proper insurance??

ACISS is proud to announce that Wayne Revell has recently passed his Test Inspection Peer Review and is now a full National Home Inspector (NHI).

Wayne Revell NHI

NHI's will be qualified for licencing in all provinces because they have been recognised in British Columbia in 2009 and now in Alberta.
